University opening at Crocker Park

The University of Phoenix plans to open a student resource center at Crocker Park in Westlake before year's end. The private university, which has campuses in Beachwood and Independence, has signed a lease for 9,000 square feet of the Whitlock Building at Main Street and Crocker Park Boulevard, near the center of the retail, residential and office development. University of Phoenix offers both on-campus and online education and attracts many working students who need evening classes and scheduling flexibility. Michael Cantor and Bill Stevens of Allegro Realty Advisors in Valley View represented the university, with assistance from the Phoenix office of CresaPartners.
